

Campbell Island

Although it would be a week before reaching the Antarctic circle, there was much work left to do. The biggest assignment before the channel break was the supplying of food and supplies to the New Zealand Research Station on Campbell Island. With the help of the helicopter's on board and the LCVP crew, the BURTON ISLAND found herself underway again.

