

GUNFIRE SUPPORT MISSIONS

"All hands man your General Quarters stations." Seventeen times we went to GQ to lend gunfire support. Each time we fired, it was at an enemy that was neither seen nor heard. Even when the missions were over it was often difficult to tell what damage had been done. But we shot well, we kept the enemy on the defensive, and at least made his work difficult and discouraging. The final tally of enemy killed or wounded and enemy structures damaged or destroyed is quite impressive and attests to the accuracy and proficiency of our crew.
