

Enroute

Soon, all too soon for most of us, Boston and the Cape Cod Canal were left in our wake and a daily routine began to take shape, with small arms training and boarding drills the order of the day. Once again, Hatteras was good to us and after five days at sea, we began our approach to the Panama Canal, a new experience for most of us.

Panama Canal

