

operations department

Being the eyes and ears of the ship is the task of the Operations Department. Celestial navigation, visual signaling, and depth sounding from the quartermasters; radar navigation and flight support from the radarmen; a virtual mystery of signals deciphered by radio central; weather and sea conditions from the marine science technicians; a photographer to capture the others in action; and, the electronics technicians who must keep it all working.

Et Shop

Radio Central

