

STOREKEEPERS

"So you can't find the stock number." "You don't deserve a special pay day." "Unrep with the USS MANATEE at 0400, no mail," Yes, you guessed it. These are typical phrases that you would expect to hear from the supply section of the ship's office.

The SK's, Serrano, Tobat, Adams, and Hargard, under the supervision of CWO2 A. M. Perry, are the ones usually sending out these answers to the same old questions. The supply office is a closely knit group with each man handling his share of the work.

These men have accounted for $70,000.00 worth of commissary, $72,000.00 in general stores, and over $750,000.00 worth of salaries, along with sending in some 300 odd financial reports during the past ten months.

CORPSMEN

HM1 Ken "Doc" Fincher, SN Glen LeLaCheur.

Keeping over 160 men in good health is only part of the job that keeps Fincher and LeLaCheur busy. On the way over to Vietnam "Doc" Fincher was busy giving lectures to the crew about the many different kinds of diseases that could be caught in the Far East. Since that time he has been busy treating them.

LeLaCheur helps to give shots and distributes weekly malaria pills. His primary job though is to keep sickbay one of the cleanest places on the ship. This team is quite proud of that "E" on their door and hopes that it will give others confidence if sickbay services are needed.
